Dear Miss Pugh

Your letter of June 8th pertaining to the declassification of the Office of Strategic Services' report, "Principal Post-Nazi German Officials," has been referred to me as the Strategic Services Unit is custodian of the records of the Office of Strategic Services.

This report is now officially declassified, but any researchers who use it should be aware that we will not entertain inquiries into sources listed.

We very much appreciate your referral of this matter for our review.

Sincerely

Executive Secretary

MEMORANDUM FOR: Chief, Records Integration Division

SUBJECT: Request for Declassification of OSS
Document, "Principal Post-Nazi
German Officials"

1. As you know, I have discussed the inquiry from the Michigan Historical Collections with Professor Ehrmann and Colonel White, both of whom were reluctant to see the material released. However, I talked to the Director this morning, and he has no problem with the declassification of this report. He does want to note that we will not go into sources. I would suggest a Strategic Services Unit letter to Michigan along the following lines:

2. This brings us to a new look at a couple of other things which are floating around, particularly the [] film, which I understand is technically classified "Confidential." Even though we talked about some possible rationale for keeping it classified, I am inclined to think we are in the same position here and that we would have little or no chance of holding out against a formal Freedom of Information bill request. My belief is the Director would have the same feeling on this as on the German officials report and that the simplest thing would be for SSU to send this down to the National Archives and Records Service as an unclassified film.

3. If you have any problems with all this, please let me know.
